

Plot

Cubey the blue cube-cat lives a simple and idyllic life in a forest until one day the forest animals start to behave differently.

Their behavior doesn't make much sense anymore and they start to become violent.

Cubey finds out that the river has been poisoned with an odd black liquid that shimmers red as Cubey watches a cube-bunny drink from the river right before it turns violent and changes its form.

Cubey decides to save its friends and home and follows the path of corruption...

Story

At start Cubey has to make its way through the forest that has just begun to get corrupted. (Therefore the difficulty level is easy at start)

After managing its way through the forest the track leads towards a city.

The journey leads through the sub-urbs, then downtown.

In the sub-urbs Cubey has to fight stronger enemies, such as cube-dogs that have been corrupted as well and impose a bigger threat.

Downtown is full of humans that impose a big threat for the tiny cube-cat because of their size alone, but also because some of them don't like animals – let alone wild animals.

From there the track goes underground and leads Cubey through the sewers of the city, which is infested with hordes of angry cube-rats and even more dangerous animals.

After that the adventure leads to a factory that seems to be producing the mysterious black liquid ...
